BOARD OF EDUCATION

CHARLES GRINNELL, President

Children admire members of the older generations in their families for their wisdom and knowledge. Similarly, students respect members of the Board of Education for their wisdom and knowledge in carrying on the work of the school district. The seven members of the Board, elected by the voters of the district, meet on the second Tuesday of each month to consider such matters as prescribed courses of study, appointment of employees, approvment of bills, and regulation of expenditures. They also discuss other problems relating to the school and community. If they feel that a matter requires further attention, they gladly sacrifice more of their time in order to perform the task to the best of their ability. Since the Board functions as a policy-making organization, its members receive and consider suggestions from interested persons. Again this year the Board has admirably performed its duties for the school district. The students of RHCS therefore wish to take this opportunity to thank each member of the group for the fine work he has done.

FOREWORD

Just as the heart of the home is the kitchen, so the heart of the nation is the family. Why? Because in the confines of a family group — even before he enters school — the child's character takes shape through the formation of never-to-be-forgotten habits and ideals. Within the home, too, parents and children, learning together, make the group function as a harmonious unit. All this has a definite bearing on the young person's development as a future student, citizen, and homemaker. The young people of America, however, have a "second home," their school. Here, too, they acquire good habits and high ideals. They also — through classwork, sports, and extracurricular activities — learn, each from the other, how to function co-operatively. In addition, life in the "school family" nurtures students' potentialities for making the home, the school, and the world at large, a better place in which to live. It is with these likenesses in mind that the staff has chosen "Family Life" as the theme for the 1960 edition of SCOPE.

DEDICATION

As we, the students of RHCS, have progressed through our years of formal education, we have become increasingly aware of the concern which you, our parents, have had for our well-being both for the present and for the years to come. From our infancy to our first day in kindergarten, you molded our characters by teaching us good habits of work, a sense of fair play, and the qualities of good citizenship. When we entered school, you realized that our teachers would serve only to augment the task you had begun. As a result, you continued to give us your ever loving guidance and care. Therefore, as we leave behind us these years of academic training to prepare for the responsibilities of adulthood — college, military service, and families of our own — we can look back with gratitude for all that you, our parents, have done for us. Thus, the staff proudly, yet humbly, dedicates this, the 1960 SCOPE, to you — the parents of all the students in the Roy-Hart family.

FACULTY

Faculty members serve as guides to aid students at school in much the same capacity as parents do at home.

JEAN KOENIG, Building Principal Middleport Elementary; JOHN D. FAHY, Director of Secondary Education; CHARLES H. PORTER, Supervising Principal; IDA M. HOFERT, Building Principal Gasport Elementary

ADMINISTRATION

JOHN McDONOUGH, Business Manager

Occasionally a family must consult a lawyer for guidance, advice, and assistance in resolving its problems. In school teachers, students, and parents seek similar help from the administrators who act in both executive and advisory capacities. The administration also serves as liaison between the Board of Education and members of the school district. In addition, the administrators are intermediaries between the Board, faculty, and students. Members of the administration also explain Board policies to these groups and then supervise the execution of such policies. They must interpret educational laws for the Board, faculty and voters of the district. The administrative staff also develops the school curriculum and supervises this academic program. Furthermore, like lawyers representing their clients, members of the administration represent the school at public functions. Thus we see that the administrative staff serves to unify the many facets of the educational program of RHCS.

"Train a child the way he should go and he will not depart from it." This is a good maxim for both parents and teachers to follow as they set about their work of educating tomorrow's adults. To help individual teachers to do their part in this tremendous task, the teachers' organization sponsors many activities. It has set up committees to investigate and report to the group on a variety of educational topics. The organization also sponsors Open House and encourages parents to make classroom visits to give teachers and parents better opportunity to discuss each child's needs as well as his capabilities. In addition, to stimulate interest in higher education, the group has established a scholarship fund for RIICS students.

Barb rehearses her speech for acceptance of the Senior Banner for Moving Up Day.

Couples enjoy dancing to the music of Ed Donson's Orchestra at the Senior Ball, "Winterset".

SENIOR CLASS

Every family faces with mixed emotions the day when their children leave home to take their place in the outside world. Each graduation causes similar feelings in the Roy-Hart family; for, while everyone rejoices over the achieving of a goal, everyone also experiences sorrow over leaving the school "home."

As graduation draws nearer, Seniors think with nostalgia of their last years in Roy-Hart. They recall their freshman year and their dance, "Rhapsody in Blue." They remember, too, their taffy sale, the "Record Hop," and another dance, "Red Sails in the Sunset," which they sponsored as Sophomores.

Memories of their junior year when they sold stationery, selected rings, and produced their first play, Class Ring, flood through their minds. That year, too, they converted the auditorium into a real paradise for the Farewell Ball and helped with Moving Up Day and Commencement. They also received, with pride, the plaque for scholastic standing.

As Seniors they started the year with a magazine sale. Next came the successful production of Onions in the Stew, and December saw the presentation of the Christmas Ball. After that, all thoughts turned to the long-awaited New York trip — a never-to-be-forgotten experience.

Now one last event remains for the Seniors — graduation, the night when they bid farewell to their RHCS "brothers" and "sisters" and receive their diplomas which will serve as passports to carry them into the wide, wide world!

Bill carefully places pink flowers on the center decoration for the Farewell Ball.

Bob learns the art of housekeeping the hard way when he becomes the victim of a short circuit.

SENIOR ACTION

Beth and Judy drowsily enjoy a piece of Linda's birthday cake at Carole's party.

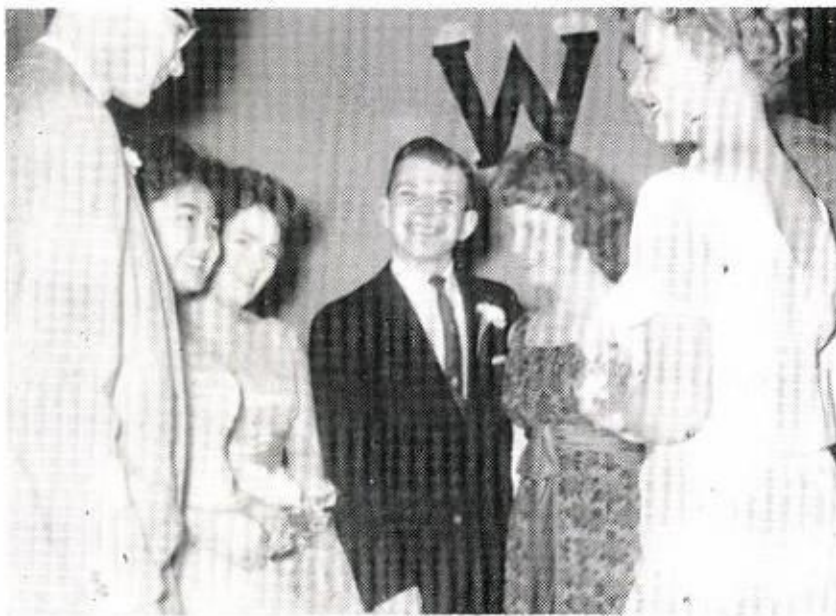

At Connie's pajama party, Barb and Carol study their lines for the Senior Play.

Ann and her mother, Betty, rehearse for the Senior Play, Onions in the Stew.

Joe finds himself sitting in a lemon meringue pie during our Junior Play, Class Ring!

Who could doubt that these dancers were enjoying the Senior Prom!

Members of the cast for our Junior Play acquaint themselves with their roles.

SENIOR ACTION

Bob and Roz decorate the archway with flowers for Moving Up Day exercises.

It is no wonder that our Seniors hoard their money so carefully!

One of Senior Band's first clarinetists begins her musical "career" under the direction of Mr. Parks.

Members of the Class of '60 conduct a vigorous campaign for the coveted offices of the seventh grade.

Junior High boys carry out their duties as waiters at the Senior Prom.

As Sophomores, we wage a war on Newfane in a parade which opened the football season.

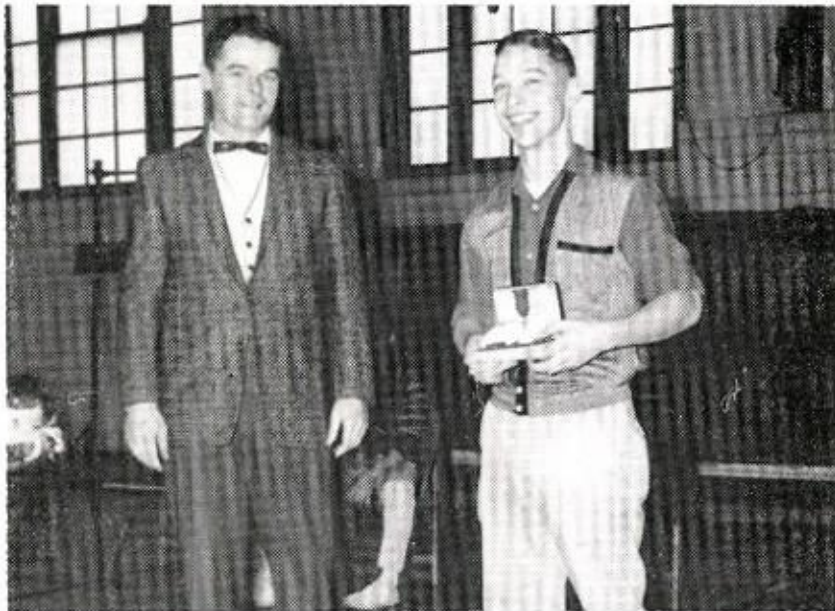

SENIOR ACTION

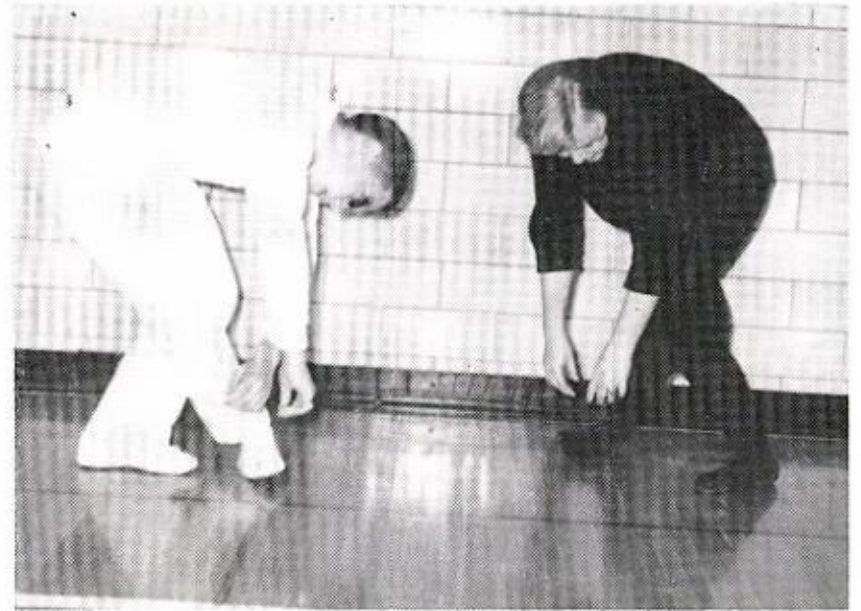

Judy, our Indian princess, performs a rain dance for our fall music assembly.

Bob Owen, winner of the Alfred Typing Contest, receives an electric shaver and medal from Mr. Fahy.

Marilyn and Bob, Senior "beatniks", predict the future! Is this what the world really is coming to? ???

Mr. Fahy crowns Beth LeValley as Junior Red Cross High School Queen for 1959.

Parents strive to develop high ideals, strong characters, and pleasing personalities in their youngsters. This training, while born in the home, is nurtured at school. We find proof of this through the success of Junior Class activities since the projects of eleventh graders require leadership, co-operation, and creativity. The Juniors hold a fall dance, produce a class play, sponsor the Farewell Ball and help with Moving Up Day and commencement programs. It's rather obvious, then, that to "do a good job" of such major activities as well as to maintain high scholastic standing, Juniors must possess the very best of character.

After lengthy family conferences concerning courses of study and requirements for graduation, Sophomores returned to Roy-Hart in September to plunge headlong into a busy second year of high school. The class demonstrated its willingness to do its share in RHCS activities by providing valuable players for football and basketball. Members of the class also joined in the school's social life by sponsoring a fall dance, "Moonlight Serenade." Thinking seriously about the future, the Sophomores forged ahead in their studies this year at the same time that they took part in many extra-curricular activities and enjoyed the "lighter side" of school life.

For months before we entered the Freshman Class, dinner table conversation turned to the high school curriculum. Our parents heard us discuss careers we wanted to pursue and activities in which we wished to participate. During the year our mothers and fathers supported our dances and our food sales. They rejoiced with us when they learned the boys would have the opportunity to see Buffalo's steel mills while the girls would visit Eastman Kodak in Rochester. Yes, with our moms and dads behind us every step of the way, we had a happy and a successful launching for our high school career.

Eighth graders and their parents attend Guidance Night together to consult with teachers concerning plans for the future. In grade eight all students study the same basic courses. The English curriculum includes speaking, writing, and reading while the social studies program concentrates on American history. In math classes students review basic fundamentals of mathematics. Their science course gives them a comprehensive view of the scientific world. In addition, these pupils study art, music, homemaking, and shop. Through participation in clubs and class activities, eighth graders learn the meaning of responsibility and cooperation. Thus, through their well-rounded program, eighth grade students prepare for their future — at school, at work, or at home.

Proud parents watch another step in their child's life as he moves from the elementary grades to Junior High. In seventh grade, students have more independence but they also learn to assume more responsibility. There are several clubs which these young people may join. They also hold election campaigns. Upperclassmen act as older sisters and brothers to these students by guiding them to classrooms, giving them advice, and setting a good example for them to follow. With family and faculty working together to help them, seventh graders master their studies and also achieve a better understanding of themselves and of people around them.

ELEMENTARY GRADES

The children at home today are the citizens of tomorrow. It is important, therefore, that in both home and school they become useful members of family and community living.

Kindergarten offers these little ones their first opportunity of adjusting to life outside their family group. They learn lessons in cooperation and sharing. First grade finds these youngsters broadening their horizons still further by visiting local public buildings where they meet postal officials, policemen, and firemen. In second grade the youngsters travel to Lockport for much the same purpose. As third graders they study food, clothing, and customs of other countries. New York State serves as the basis of study for fourth grade students. In fifth grade they learn about the United States; in grade six the emphasis is on a study of the world.

This year there are twenty-three elementary classes in Gasport and twenty-one in Middleport. Students in all of these groups benefit from regular classes in stringed instruments, band, music, and physical education. They also have a nurse and a dental hygienist for their health program.

Thus, through the working together of school and home, the younger children of the RHCS family have every advantage for the best possible elementary education.

GRADES IN ACTION

Mrs. Ellen Conley and her family.

The Gibbs children: Margaret, Laura and Martha.

Elementary students admire the Christmas display in the library.

Middleport Elementary Library Club members help Mrs. Blackburn.

Mr. Bradley, a "Co-op" teacher, gives a violin lesson.

Mrs. Dickinson weighs Diane MacEvoy in a periodic check-up.

GRADES AT WORK

Students watch as Stephen, Holly, and Roslin work for Miss Stone in the art room.

Miss Stone displays art work done by Ottie Lewis.

Girls in Library Club prepare for a Christmas tea.

Wendy York and Carol Penley water the plants for Mrs. Schilling.

Girls in Miss Minckley's gym class practice head stands.

Mr. March gives his gym class basketball instructions.

GRADES KEEP BUSY

Students from Mrs. Retchless' room choose balanced meals.

Miss Neuman helps her kindergarten students with their lunch.

These children make a snowman for the operetta.

Skaters in the operetta pose for a picture.

Kindergarten youngsters enjoy climbing on the jungle gym.

The Easter Bunny visits the grades in the spring.

OPERETTA SCENES

These second grade pupils are "sleepers" in the operetta.

Third graders take the part of "Jingle Bells."

Bonnie watches Stephen wait impatiently for Nancy to finish using the phone.

Sue Demo knits while Mary Pacilli gives Gregory Lago his medicine.

Girls spent Christmas on the sunny beaches of Florida.

Christmas shoppers, with their many packages, stop to rest.

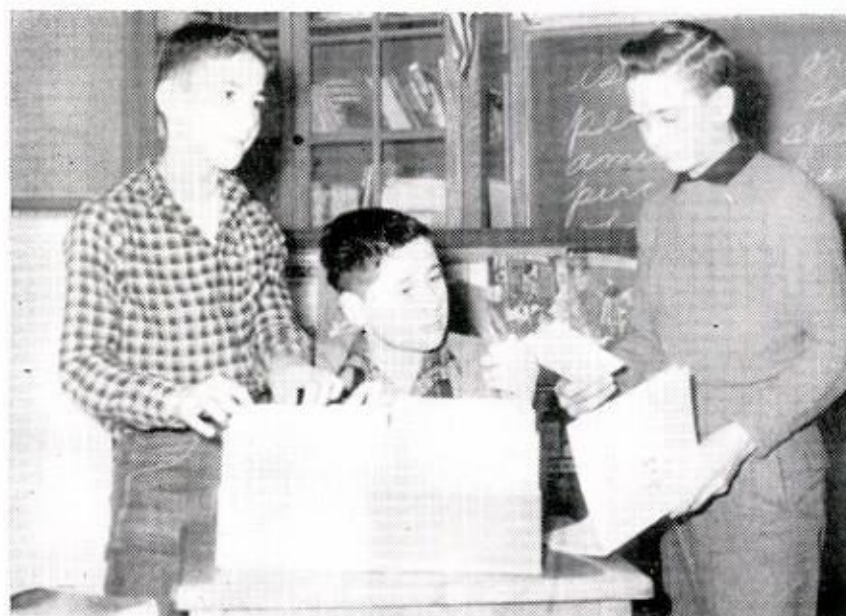

CURRICULUM

Members of the various departments work together as a family to coordinate the curriculum for the student body.

Bill King and Ronnie Phillips use the microphone for a speech for English IV.

These seventh graders check results of their reading test.

ENGLISH

Can you possibly imagine what life would be like if Mom couldn't read a recipe and Dad weren't able to write a check? And how dull things would be if we couldn't chat with our family and friends or understand our favorite radio and television programs? Yes, English IS an essential part of our daily life. Why? Because it teaches us to read, write, speak, and listen effectively. Without skill in the use of these methods of communication we would find little enjoyment in the home, the school, or the community.

CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION

Upon returning from adult education class, Father had many queries regarding his children's program in citizenship education. As he tossed questions to his offspring, he learned that RHCS students study "cit. ed." for their four high school years. His youngsters told him, too, that the program includes economic citizenship, world history, American history, and problems in democracy. Dad also found that they have weekly current events papers. Besides, the children described their work in studying maps, interpreting graphs, and reading periodicals. Altogether the breadth and depth of the citizenship education program pleased Dad greatly.

Betsy Fisk

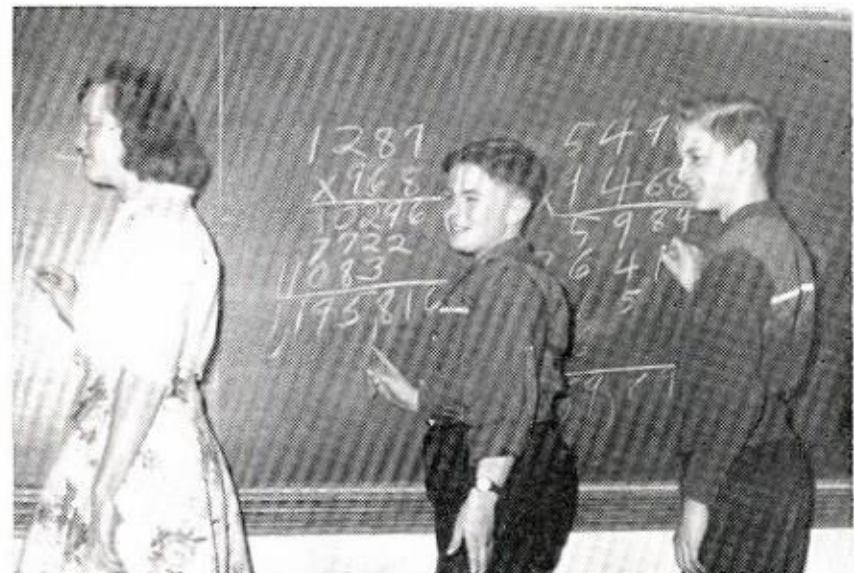

In citizenship education class, Mr. Besser points out Moscow for Betsy Fisk.

Mr. Kane shows Joe MacDonald facts about income taxes.

Dolores Culver and Bobbie Berent utilize supervised study period in their math class.

Sue Kempton, Bill Ewing, and Kent Hinkley work problems at the board.

MATHEMATICS

Have you ever asked Dad if you could borrow on your next allowance? Having to stretch that weekly allotment over a variety of articles sometimes involves quite a lot of figuring! We at Roy-Hart, however, are used to solving such problems in our math classes. Teachers in the Mathematics Department give instruction to us for required courses in grade seven through grade nine and offer elective courses to us in Senior High. From our math courses we students learn to read with understanding, to reason with logic, and to think with clarity.

SCIENCE

How many conveniences in your home you never could have enjoyed were it not for research scientists! Today, even to understand the news, every person needs a wide background in science. The aim of the Science Department is to provide this background for Roy-Hart's young people. The teachers want each student to gain a working knowledge of the world about him. In addition, through helping these people develop scientific curiosity, the teachers encourage them to pursue their studies so that they, in turn, can make still further contributions to science.

Barbara Schilling

Don Ramming and Hazel Eick collect hydrogen by the displacement of water.

Mr. McKinney supervises Tom, Carol, and Ralph in an experiment in the new science lab.

Robert, Gary, and Peter dramatize the Latin story, "Ursa".

French students use the new equipment in the language lab.

LANGUAGE

"God-dag!" were the words with which Peggy Leite greeted her American family. Having students from abroad study with us at RHCS has given new impetus to the study of language. Our school is the first in the area to make use of a new technique for teaching modern languages. This method requires a language laboratory which the federal government helps finance. This year, also, we have two full-time teachers in the Language Department, a fact which enables more students to study more courses in this field.

ART

Both parents and children work together to make their homes attractive by using harmonious color combinations to create bright, pleasing rooms. By participating in the interesting art courses offered at RHCS, students acquire knowledge of good taste, discernment and sensitivity in respect to shape, form, and color as these factors appear in their environment. The artistic feelings which these youthful artists develop from paintings, sculpture, photography, printing, and the study of color and design they can use later in their choices of material things for the interior decoration of charming and comfortable homes of their own.

Beverly Jones

Eighth graders make drums for Christmas decorations in the cafeteria.

Dennis Bailey works on sculpturing in art class.

During a mock trial Chief Judge Miller rules on evidence presented by Attorney Seaver.

Mrs. Gaskill teaches a business student to operate the switchboard.

BUSINESS

"Dad, won't you show me how you write your checks? I need to know for tomorrow's introduction to business assignment." While students learn about household finances at home, in school the Business Department prepares them for secretarial and clerical office positions. This year seventh graders also have had opportunity to study typing during activity period. Throughout the year Seniors work on the office switchboard and do typing and duplicating for teachers. Through completing the work of the business courses, students earn vocational stenographic, general business, or vocational office practice diplomas.

HOMEMAKING

Remember Mother's letting you "lick" the bowl after watching her bake a cake? You didn't realize it then but in this way she, in her wisdom, introduced you to the fundamentals of homemaking. Teachers in Roy-Hart's Homemaking Department also aid girls in mastering the art of turning a house into a home. They help these young people learn about the planning and serving of well-balanced, attractive meals. Besides, they give instruction in interior decoration, child care, and budgeting. In addition, they assist girls in learning many other aspects for creating a happy home life.

Lucretia Hessel

Dorothy Meindl refinishes doors in the homemaking living room.

Ellen Hammond and Betty Hill hang drapes the group made for homemaking class.

Lyndon Dysinger, Wayne Ranney, and Gary Urtel check information sheets and soil samples.

Ronnie Rosenthal, Wendel Silsby, and Richard Wojtkowski check a milking machine.

AGRICULTURE

On the farm, Dad checks the many tasks of the family just as the teacher of agriculture supervises the variety of summer projects of his "Ag" boys. The vacation program gives these boys firsthand experiences in raising livestock, producing crops, and marketing the fruits of their labors. This work, however, is but one phase of the curriculum in the Agriculture Department. During the school year, the fellows study farm shop, management, and marketing, as well as learning the newest and most effective methods of agriculture.

Casey Whittemore

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Today, the workshop, with its many new types of equipment, enjoys increasing popularity in the American home. To keep pace with this trend, the Industrial Arts Department must give boys a greater understanding and knowledge of the operation and care of modern devices now common in everyday life. This year boys in the department may study general metal shop, the third stage of a well-rounded industrial arts program in RHCS. Also, for the first time in several years, they may take electricity as a full year's course.

David Gould

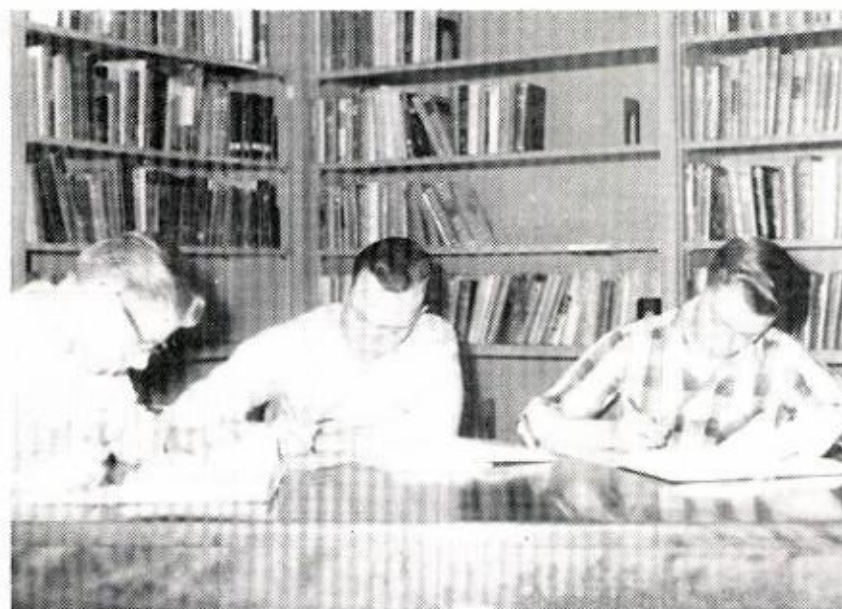

Seventh grade boys repair bicycles in Mr. Kaz's shop.

Lyn Weller, Judy Alexander, Barbara Cassett, and Florence Kudel make lamps.

Mrs. Bunnell helps Janet Bedford find research material.

George, Bill, and Elbert gather information for English IV term papers.

LIBRARY

"Read me another story, Daddy — please!" Children first find pleasure in the world of books when parents read to them. Later they thrill to more adventures in book-land at the library weekly story hour. Finally, at school, they progress from picture books to more difficult reading. They also learn to use the library and all its facilities. Thus, whether it be young children seeking books for leisure reading or Seniors searching for term paper materials, every RHCS student soon learns of the many services performed for him by the Library Department.

Carolyn Schultz

STUDENT COUNSELORS

The student counselors have much the same duty at school as parents have at home in the guiding of high school students into careers from which they will derive a feeling of happiness and accomplishment. The members of this department keep youngsters informed not only about careers but also about scholarships, colleges, and the armed forces. They also help each student plan for his future through wise choices of electives. For these reasons, all Roy-Hart students should avail themselves of the various services of the Counseling Department.

Loretta Sherman

Mr. Uschold, student counselor, uses the file to locate students' records.

Mr. Vail, our new student counselor, works out a schedule with Jay Groff.

In an assembly program the double quartet sings "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come."

Mr. Covers gives Frank Chestnut a lesson on the alto saxophone.

MUSIC

"Man, that's terrific!" proclaims Junior as he listens to the very record which causes his parents to cringe. At Roy-Hart, however, the Music Department presents such a varied program that each member of the school family is happy. While Junior likes the new arrangements of the Dance Band, "Sis" enjoys the operetta "Brigadoon." Mom finds pleasure in the tonal quality and blending of voices of chorus while Dad gains satisfaction from the band's clear tones. Yes, every member of the family agrees that the work of Roy-Hart's Music Department is terrific!

DRIVER EDUCATION

"Hey, Dad! May I use the car tonight?" Today fathers can answer "yes" to this question with greater confidence than they could have a few years ago. Why? Because through the driver education courses their children have learned the fundamentals of good driving. Parents realize that in the school's classes for drivers their offspring have learned not only how to drive safely but also how to care properly for a car. The results? Fewer refusals from Dad when Junior asks for the car; but, more important, a reduction in the number of accidents involving young people!

Cheryl Roszmann

Mr. Enzinna instructs his driver education class on the art of changing tires.

Kenneth Hill takes an eye test as the rest of Mr. Enzinna's class watch.

Mrs. Goodman gives each student an eye test.

As part of the annual physical Dr. Williams checks Bill's ears.

HEALTH

Just as members of personal families have periodic physical check-ups, so students of Roy-Hart's family have annual health examinations. The school nurse supervises this program and assists the doctor in its execution. She also conducts a yearly polio clinic and tests the sight and hearing of RHCS students. Another member of this department, the dental hygienist, cleans each pupil's teeth and reports any defects to the parents. Thus, through the work of the health room staff, Roy-Hart's family enjoys a healthy life at school.

Sandra Luedemann

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Since the happiness of every family depends upon the health of its members, the chief purpose of the Physical Education Department is the promotion of physical fitness. The department, therefore, maintains a balanced program of activities, both in classes and extra-curricularly, stressing those sports most likely to develop coordination, strength, skill, and sportsmanship. Knowing how to enjoy leisure time through family participation in sports follows naturally when students have engaged in this program in school. For this reason, too, physical education teachers sponsor activities designed to carry over into the later life of the individual.

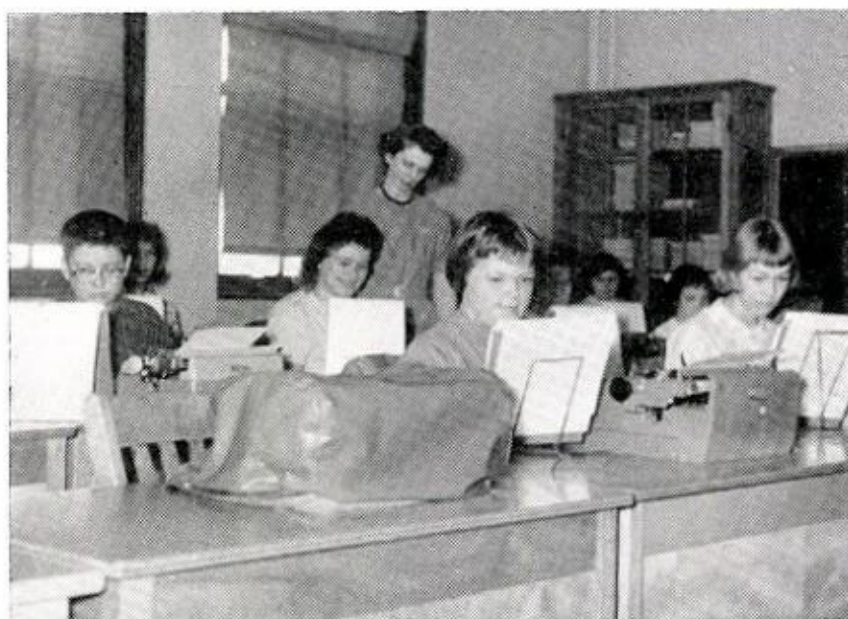

Marilyn Roszmann

A student practices a knee-elbow tip-up in gym class.

Ruth Alexander looks on as Peggy does a bird's nest on the parallel bars.

During activity period Miss Ozimek helps seventh graders learn fundamentals of typing.

Bob, Marilyn, and Elaine read the script for a musical assembly.

Girls from Mixed Chorus dance the Charleston in the "Year of History" assembly.

Sue Williams, student hostess, directs a visitor at "Visit Your School Night."

In the cafeteria Mrs. Mulvey takes money for a student's lunch.

"SCOPE is great this year! Look at that picture!! It's exactly like us!!!" These words resound from house to house as families examine the latest yearbook. Press Clubbers, like members of a large family, work together for SCOPE. They write, rewrite, and proofread the articles. They also take pictures and identify each subject. In addition they read the galley proof and make the "dummy" for the printer. Finally SCOPE goes to press. Then, when distribution day arrives, praise from students and families cause Press Clubbers to say, "It was worth the effort!"

FHA members have many opportunities to learn how to promote good family relationships. In addition, from speakers and discussions at their meetings, they obtain valuable information about the care of the hair, the use of cosmetics, and the requisites of good manners. Members of the chapter also attend district FHA rallies where they learn still further lessons pertinent to the life of a homemaker. To defray the cost of these trips, the girls have an annual nut sale just before Christmas.

The presentation of last season's colorful production of Melody Fair served a two-fold purpose locally. It increased family enjoyment of drama and also swelled the ranks of Roy-Hart's Dramatics Club for the current year. Members of this group studied stage production and presented a one-act play for assembly. In addition they applied make-up for grade and high school plays and operettas. Through such experiences these youthful, but extremely interested, Thespians have had opportunity to gain a broader knowledge of the theatrical world.

Have you ever realized that your mom and dad are teachers as well as parents? Because of the training they have given you, many of you may also want to become teachers. If so, join FTA — the club designed to help young people discover their aptitudes for teaching. This year's activities included a pennant sale and a trip to Brockport State. Under the "teacherette" program, members served as aides to Roy-Hart teachers. At regular meetings they also enjoyed films and addresses concerned with the teaching profession.

Members of the group study methods of fire control and conduct fire drills in the school. In addition to these duties, the boys conduct classes to and from assemblies. They have also initiated air raid drills. The organization limits its number to twenty-two members, each of whom wins his one-year term of office through class elections.

When Johnny makes the Honor Roll, the praise he receives at home stimulates him to work even harder. At school, National Honor Society also tries to promote scholarship. For membership in the Society, faculty members select a limited number of upperclassmen who have displayed highest qualities of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Members of the group hold an impressive installation ceremony. They entertain newly-elected members for luncheon. In addition, throughout the year, the group encourages high scholarship and good citizenship for all RHCS students.

Illness, at one time or another, enters every home. For this reason, whether or not she decides to become a nurse, a girl's training in FNC will help her in her role as a wife and mother in years to come. FNC girls work in the health room and in neighboring nursing homes. They also assist RHCS health personnel at clinics. In addition, they visit hospitals to observe techniques used by nurses. Such activities naturally stimulate interest among RHCS girls in nursing as a career.

A look through the family album recalls many happy memories. In addition, however, it often reveals errors we committed in our earliest attempts in photography. We become, therefore, more aware of the value of a club which teaches us the proper use of photographic equipment. In Photography Club we practice taking, developing, enlarging, and printing pictures. This year we served also as a service organization by taking "snaps" for teachers and for other clubs. The finished pictures make a fascinating album for Roy-Hart's family!

Just as our parents develop healthy community relationships by serving on committees for civic organizations, so students promote good citizenship through Junior Red Cross. To accomplish their aim of helping others, JRC members sponsor drives for Good Will and March of Dimes, decorate rooms at the Veteran's Hospital, and send Christmas cookies to hospital patients. They also sponsor the swimming program. In fact, no task is too great for this group to undertake — if it is for the purpose of serving others.

To promote better world understanding, families of the area have — through the American Field Service — opened their homes to exchange students. Similarly, the newly organized AFS Club, whose membership includes students from grades seven through twelve, promotes enthusiasm for the exchange program. Dad may govern the home but at school, students, through membership in Student Council, have the opportunity to serve as members of a legislative body. The Council sponsors a student forum and other worthwhile programs pertinent to creating better student attitudes and improving school life. This year the Council chartered clubs, sold calendars, approved club constitutions, and provided a suggestion box for student use. Participation in Student Council is truly a lesson in cooperation — one to apply at home as well as at school. Beth LeValley

Nothing recalls to families the good times they have enjoyed together as do photographs and movies. At school audio-visual aids have a different purpose, but they do afford pleasure to students at the same time that they serve as educational tools. To provide the services of audio-visual devices in classroom or community is the function of AV Club. When called upon to do so, the boys in the group operate the school's AV machines. They also help repair and care for such equipment.

The ability to handle money correctly and to purchase goods wisely is essential in family life. Retailing Club provides its members with training in carrying out such transactions. Students in the club work at various jobs which require them to deal with money frequently. This helps them learn to treat financial matters with painstaking care. They also learn to select merchandise with wisdom. Learning of these matters through club activities will help young people deal with financial matters in their homes of the future.

JUNIOR HIGH CHORUS

Junior High youngsters enjoy listening to music and taking part in song fests in their homes. At school the Junior High Chorus nurtures this love of music by giving students opportunity to sing with other pupils of their own age. Members of the group participate in Christmas and spring concerts as well as in other choral assemblies during the year. When these youthful musicians perform, their mothers' and fathers' pride is clearly evident by their attendance at such programs.

JUNIOR HIGH SCIENCE CLUB

"Mother! What was that explosion?"

"Don't worry, dear. It's just your Dad and Junior working with Junior's chemistry set again!"

Junior High Science Club undertakes to nurture every evidence of interest in science which may have begun at home. How? By guiding students in investigations of the realms of research. Club members explore different phases of science every month. In addition each student must complete one research project during the year in order to maintain his membership in the group.

EIGHTH GRADE DRAMATIC CLUB

How thrilled members of the family were to see their daughter in the first play sponsored by the newly-organized Eighth Grade Dramatic Club! This group, which adopted its constitution and received its charter this year, offers membership to eighth graders interested in the world behind the footlights. At their meetings, students read plays, prepare skits, and perform stunts. They also learn about the theater and the lives of great actors and actresses. In addition they study theatrical careers open to young people.

Beverly Jones

The club and its adviser select a play to present for the entire group.

Officers plan a busy year.

JUNIOR HISTORIANS

Junior Historians welcome letters from pen pals who ask about the St. Lawrence Seaway, the Erie Canal, and other facts about New York State. The local JH members enjoy answering such questions, because they themselves have found the study of the Empire State a fascinating topic. For this reason, they encourage other schools to form similar clubs. This year, too, they made puppets for an assembly skit and for the Buffalo Jamboree. They also visited a museum and planned a boat trip on the canal.

Marilyn Roszmann

JUNIOR HISTORICAL SOCIETY

"Did Belva Lockwood really live near here?" queries the youngest member of the family; and how his older brother, member of JHS, loves to tell him the answer! This year members of the local Junior Historical Society unit constructed a Yorkers' map and prepared an exhibit for American Education Week. At their meetings they enjoyed films and addresses. They also entertained neighboring JHS clubs. Besides visiting the County Museum they took part in East Aurora's jamboree and the Yorkers' State Convention.

PEGGY — OUR FOREIGN STUDENT

Margarete Leite meets Mr. DiCarlo at the AFS Club tea in the fall.

Julie Ide, Bob, and Peggy represent Brazil, United States, and Norway at the Senior Prom.

Peggy livens the gym with some real Latin-American rhythm!

For the "Norwegian Dock Dances," Peggy dons the native dress of her country.

Peggy enjoys pajama parties so much that she plans to introduce them in Norway.

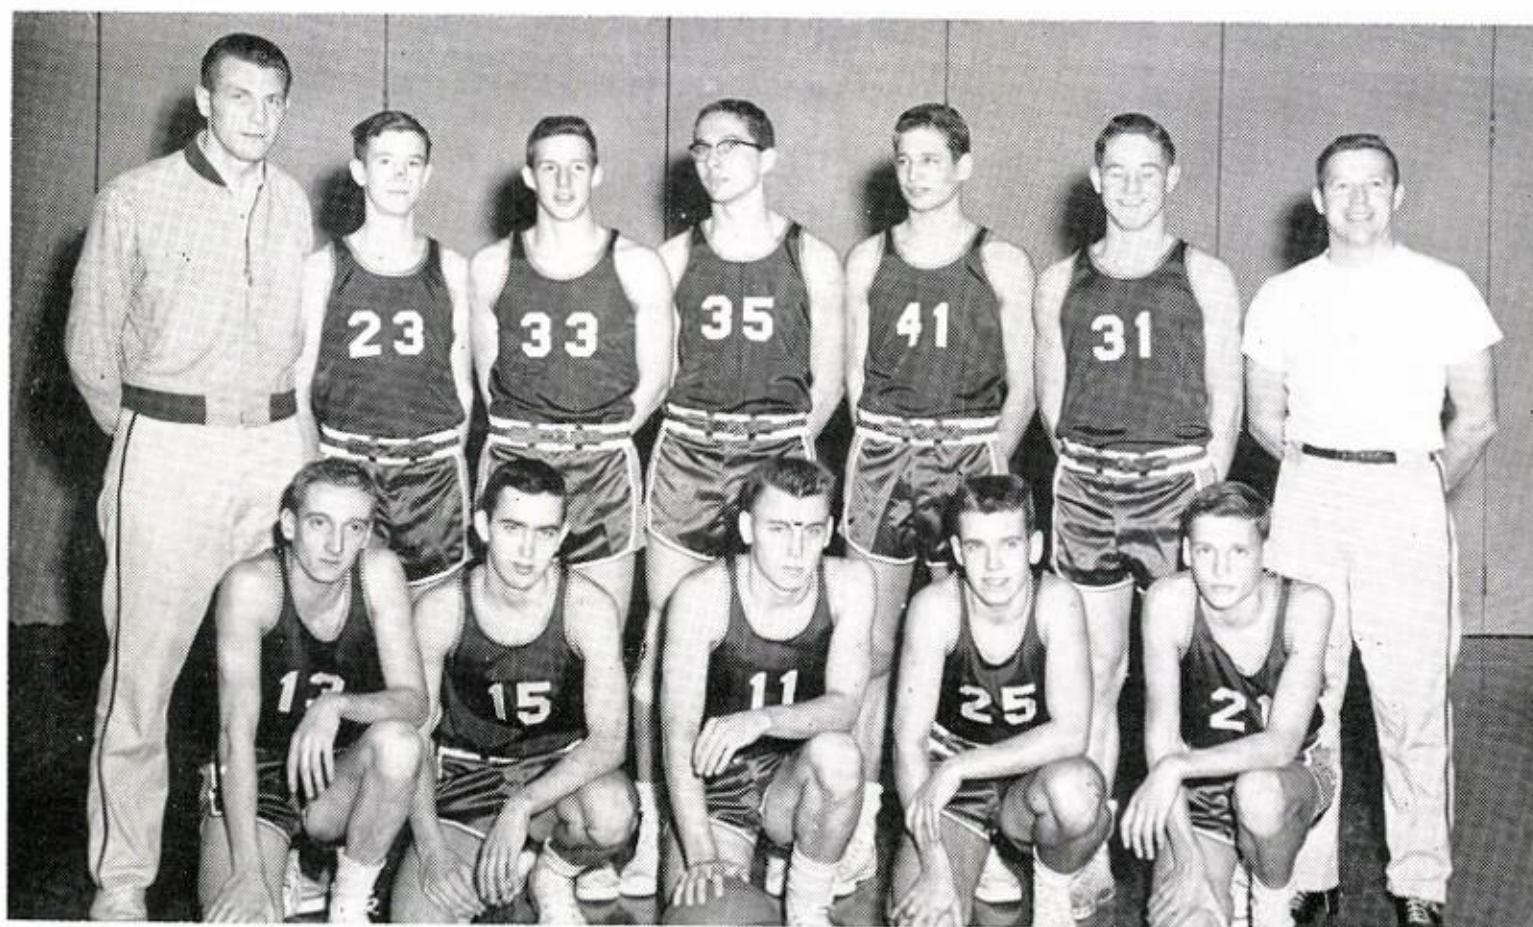

Peg's pep as a Varsity cheerleader helps our teams to "fight a little harder."

The night of a basketball game is truly "family night" for RHCS students and their parents. Why? Because everyone enjoys watching our team compete with those of neighboring schools. Through their efforts on the court, local "hoopsters" develop healthy minds and bodies. In addition, they and their followers build salutary sportsmanship attitudes, since they all learn it's not the score that matters but the way the game is played. We thank you, therefore, "fellas," for your efforts this season and wish you good luck for the next!

"He's down to the forty, the thirty, the twenty — and it's a touchdown!" Grouped around the blaring television set, the family cheers wildly as its favorite team scores another victory. Such, too, was the scene around the gridiron at Roy-Hart this year. The Rams' determination, drive, and strong desire to win helped them off to a good start even though they were a "young" team. The excellent teamwork which the fellows showed throughout the season enabled them to tie for second place in league competition. In fact, the team suffered only two defeats in league games. The Rams scored another success, too, by playing in Roy-Hart's first night game, an attraction holding much promise for future seasons.

BASEBALL

From Dad right down the line to the youngest Little Leaguer, entire families enjoy either watching or playing baseball. This carries over into life at RHCS where students manifest a lively interest in the great American sport. Whole families follow, with enthusiasm, Roy-Hart's team from game to game. Last season saw the selection of Don Wheeler as most valuable player of the year while Bob Collins took the honors for batting and Lorne LeBere and Gary Drum received honorable mention for the Niagara-Orleans All-League Team. With the experience gained in last year's competition, the team and all its supporters look forward to a highly successful spring season.

TRACK AND FIELD

Coach — WILLIAM ANNABLE

Members of a family have to work together harmoniously for the best interests of all. In similar fashion RHCS harriers must function well together in order to build a truly effective track team. This year's group has a new track and new equipment, both of which enable the school to hold more home meets. Last year the team, composed largely of underclassmen, won the trophy for the Class B championship through competing with teams from Starpoint, Akron, Niagara-Wheatfield, Newfane, and Barker. According to the coach, the 1959-1960 team, having gained experience from last year's meets, gives every promise of holding on to the trophy for another season.

CROSS COUNTRY

Coach — DAVID MARCH

Ready! Set!! Go!!! And the traditional relay race — most exciting event of the family's picnic — is under way. Just as this contest may become an annual affair for a particular family, so Cross Country has become a regular feature in Roy-Hart's athletic program. Owing to last year's graduation only one letterman returned to school this fall. Before long, though, new recruits turned out to make an effective team. Before representing the school in interscholastic meets, these fellows had to develop stamina and endurance. This year Dave Gould won honors as the squad's outstanding runner. Every member of the team, however, deserves commendation for helping to put the local Cross Country team on top!

CHEERLEADERS

Adviser — MISS CAROL LENHARDT

What a wonderful feeling for young people to know that as they play the game of life their family is always behind them — rejoicing over each victory and sympathizing over each defeat! Do you realize, however, that it is just as wonderful a feeling for members of the teams of RHCS to know that, win or lose, the student body rejoices or sympathizes with them? The chief function of Roy-Hart's cheerleaders is to help promote such loyalty by creating a wholesome school spirit. Their next job is to make the teams feel this support by leading the cheering at athletic functions. Another task of the cheerleaders is to foster good sportsmanship at such activities. Members of both Varsity and Junior Varsity squads practice for two hours each week. In addition, they have formed Roy-Hart's Pep Club to deepen student interest in the school's athletic events.

Pep Club is the newest member of Roy-Hart's family of clubs. Its function is to stimulate enthusiasm throughout the student body for the various activities sponsored in the school. To accomplish this, members of the club plan to put on skits to advertise sports events and other school projects. They will also sponsor a program to raise funds for JV cheerleaders' uniforms. Since Pep Club is the "baby" of the family, it asks for support from every one of its older "brothers" and "sisters"!

Asst. Secretary-Treasurer	BETSY FISK
Adviser	MRS. JOAN LLOYD

Good parents never show partiality between children. Similarly, Roy-Hart's family must not show partiality between boys and girls; therefore, girls — as well as boys — can earn recognition in sports. When a girl wins her first intramural award, she becomes a member of the Girls' Athletic Association. The purpose of this group is, of course, to promote good sportsmanship. This year GAA members joined forces with the fellows of Varsity Club to sell candy at games, sponsor a dance, and hold a sports' banquet.

Parents are proud when their son receives a Little League baseball award just as Roy-Hart is proud of her "lettermen." Because of this pride, RHCS has its Varsity Club to promote interest in sports. To become a member of the group a boy must earn his varsity letter and receive an invitation from current members. To raise money for awards, the group sponsors dances and sells candy. In addition, the boys help maintain order among spectators at all athletic events.
